II: Comprehension questions: read the passages and answer the questions.

As a joke writer for Bob Hope for 20 years, Gene Perret had taken hundreds of flights. So he was only half listening when the air steward began reciting safety instructions. Suddenly Perret's ears pricked up. "There may be 50 ways to leave your lover." And then: "Please return your seat to its upright and most uncomfortable position. Later you may lean back and break the knees of the passenger behind you".

Perret uses this story to make a serious point: humour can grab someone's attention and get a message across. "Some people can't tell a joke to save their lives," says Perret, "but everyone can learn to use humour effectively."

41- What is Perret's profession?..... .

- |                                |                          |

1. felt pain in his ears
2. covered his ears not to be uncomfortable during the flight
3. listened carefully
4. tried to make the joke

43- "Perret uses this story to make a serious point". Perret..... .

1. says something funny
2. writes a joke about his flight
3. says that by using a sense of humour one could convey important information
4. says something not very thoughtful

44- "Humour can grab someone's attention and get a message across". "Get a message across" means to..... .

- |  |   |
|--|---|
| 1. send a messenger a piece of information | 2. receive a message throughout the media |
| 3. make people understand a message        | 4. make people humorous about jokes       |

My favourite category of put-down is the well- dressed insult otherwise known as "constructive criticism"(which is anything but).You can recognize these by the company they keep – usually such phrases as "I hope you don't mind if I'm honest," or "I'm telling you this for your own good." Somehow, you're supposed to admire the critic for his candour and appreciate his concern, while you try to recover from the punch in the gut.

It's easy, when defending yourself from insults, to get caught in a vicious cycle of attack and counter-attack. Fortunately, there are ways to deflect the barb—and boost self-esteem.

46- A "Put-down" is a(n)..... .
