Reading passage I: (questions 41-45)According to scientists, an asteroid impact can be divided into four stages:

Atmospheric passage: It would take only a few seconds for an asteroid to pass through the atmosphere. In that time, friction would heat its surface and the asteroid would become a radiating fireball as it streaked across the sky. Eyewitnesses at Tunguska said the fireball's streak stretched almost from horizon to horizon.

Compression: At the point of impact, the asteroid transfers its movement energy into the ground rock. This creates a shock wave that propagates away from the asteroid. During this phase, the rocks are subjected to such extreme pressures by the shock wave that they flow like a liquid.

Excavation: When the shock wave passes, the compressed rocks relax again, making the material expand explosively backwards, which in this case is towards the Earth's surface. So rock explodes outwards, excavating a hole in the ground, known as the crater. This is a rapid process, and the crater achieves its final form in less than 10 seconds.

The crater: Craters are usually bowl-shaped depressions. Larger examples sometimes have a central peak where the rock has rebounded upwards. The craters may slump, causing terracing. The depth and width of a crater depend upon factors such as the strength of the surrounding rocks and the gravitational pull of the impacting body.

41-What happens to the asteroid as it passes through the atmosphere?

1. It radiates harmful waves.
2. It explodes in the sky.
3. It turns into a fireball.
4. It increases its speed.

42-How did the eyewitnesses at Tunguska describe the asteroid?

1. It was a huge fireball.
2. It appeared in the horizon.
3. It radiated strong flames.
4. It created a very long streak.

43-What happens when the asteroid hits the ground?

1. It turns into very small pieces.
2. It creates huge shocks if it lands in water.
3. It propagates from its own center to other areas.
4. Its movement energy is transferred to the ground rock.

Reading passage II: (questions 46-50)

Take a deep breath. Deep breathing slows the heart rate, relieves nervous tension and lowers blood pressure while reducing stress hormones. Practice deep breathing ten to 15 minutes every day and whenever you feel stressed. Let the air fill both your chest and abdomen, then release it slowly. Many doctors recommend 12 to 16 breaths per minute.

Do some meditation. People often use meditation as a means to relax, which in turn helps fight fatigue. One technique is to find a quiet place and sit comfortably. Relax, close your eyes and focus on a neutral word like one and repeat it continuously. When distracting thoughts intrude, bring yourself back to the neutral word.

Do some slow stretches. Stretching can produce some of the same effects as deep breathing. It relieves muscle tension caused by fatigue-producing stressors and helps move blood through the body and oxygen to the brain. Begin each day with a mild, energizing stretch. Flexing the spine stimulates circulation in the body. Among the best is the cat arch: Get on your hands and knees, then slowly and deliberately round your back into an arch. Hold for about ten seconds, then gradually release.

46- Which of the following is NOT mentioned as one of the consequences of a deep breath?

1. Slower heart rate
2. Faster metabolism
3. More relaxed nervous condition
4. Lower blood pressure

47- According to doctors, approximately how long should each deep breath take?

1. About 5 seconds
2. About 10 seconds
3. About 15 seconds
4. About 20 seconds
